Marketing and Advertising:
1. Sunset Magazine’s Northern California and Pacific Northwest editions target a solid drive market for Redding and has a circulation of 486,000. The ad for the August issue featured waterfalls in the Redding area and the ad deadline was in May, well before the Carr Fire in July. It still ran and encouraged 162 people to request more information about Redding.

2. Via magazine is distributed to travel-savvy AAA members throughout Northern California, Nevada, Utah, Montana, Wyoming and Alaska, and has a circulation of 2.7 million – approximately half of which are from the Bay Area; a perfect drive market for potential Redding visitors. The half-page Fall issue of AAA’s Via magazine (see right) promoted Redding’s phenomenal trails system. Like Sunset Magazine, the ad deadline was before the Carr Fire started, which prevented the option to change to another message.
3. As part of the Redding CVB’s support of the Red Sun Festival, a billboard promoting the Festival was placed near Mountain Gate on southbound Interstate-5. This billboard along with one at Granzella’s were the first phase of support. The second phase will launch and be reported in September as requested by the Redding Civic Auditorium.

Public Relations:

1. The Carr Fire shifted the RCVB’s public relations strategy from pitching Redding to media to generate tourism to a crisis management plan. The action plan began by thanking, celebrating and honoring the first responders, the community and the tourism industry efforts. Phase 2 was a transition-phase to show potential tourists all the places they can experience in Redding and the surrounding area. The third phase of the action plan is being launched in September as air quality continues to improved.

The first phase took place during the active fire and included the following actions:

- Temporary pause of standard social media messaging and advertising campaigns;
- Communication to partners about directing media inquiries to RCVB and to not engage in speculation or hyperbole;
- Carr Fire Update button/link on Visit Redding’s home page, providing multiple updates on the fire and information resources;
- Daily media statements established for consistent, accurate, up-to-date information;
- Proactive outreach to national news outlets including ABC, CBS, CNN, Fox, NBC, CNBC, Associated Press, Reuters, New York Times, and USA Today encouraging accurate reporting to Redding’s status, and mitigating inaccurate reporting that could potentially have a negative impact on the people of the region;
- Story written by the RCVB for the Redding Record Searchlight on community efforts, which allowed us to show the spirit of the people of Redding and control the message.

The second phase took place as fire containment progressed:

- Press release proactively sent to media highlighting gratitude messaging and major attraction/downtown Redding is “open for business;”
- Offering Laurie Baker as interview spokesperson to discuss current status of the destination and community efforts;
• Outreach to locals and drive markets to encourage support of Redding/Shasta Cascade businesses;
• Partnership with Visit California to provide updated information for their messaging and press releases about the impact of the fire from hotels, roads, and attractions.

2. The RCVB provided updated information and assisted in five published articles, one of which was from the New York Times. The five articles reached 33.1 million unique monthly visitors (UMV).

3. As part of the transition to Phase 3 of the PR plan, where video and photography will be used to show what is open for business, the RCVB decided to capitalize on beautiful weather in Redding to display the blue skies at the Sundial Bridge with a Facebook Live video. The goal of the video was to show the latest state of our city, contrary to the media sensationalism from covering the Carr Fire. The 20-minute video showed the Sundial Bridge with a blue-sky backdrop, the Sacramento River, drift boat fishermen and people enjoying the weather. The video generated 25,527 views, reaching 69,164 people for a total of 10,500 minutes viewed. A targeted boost to drive market areas such as the Bay Area and Sacramento helped increase the awareness of the status of the city. The comments were positive (see above) and some included planning trips back to Redding now that they know it is clear of the fire.

International:

1. Visit California Mexico Media FAM – The RCVB partnered with Shasta Cascade Wonderland Association (SCWA) and Visit California to bring Actor & GoPro Ambassador Ruy Sendersons, and Aire Inflight Magazine editor Pedro Aguilar to Redding and Lassen Volcanic National Park. Sendersons’ social media reach is 354,400 including Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, and YouTube. The social media value of his posts as of mid-August is $18,268.38. Aire Inflight Magazine has a total reach of 1.6 million. The anticipated published media value for the five-page editorial created from this trip to be published in the November issue of Aire Inflight Magazine is $50,694.
